Report on “Research Methodology for Analyzing the Indo-China Border Dispute”

(March 17, 2023)

Introduction:

The Indian borders are very sensitive places not only in the sense of security, safety and protection but in the economic and political affairs too. The north-east border areas, especially, the Indo-China borders have always been disputable since before Indian independence. After Indian independence too, it has become a bone of contention between India and China. So, it becomes an interesting matter for all to understand it deeply. The Indo-China political and economic relation also plays a very vital role in these areas. In the recent years, China has developed many colonies near border areas and also made railway track near borders. All these heard news and gossips create a lot of confusion not only among students but to teachers also. Prof. D C Katiyar, Convener & Head, Dept. of Defence and Strategic Studies, organized this programme.
